

Abstract

A device for performing the maze procedure through the pericardial space, which includes a very flexible catheter for laying down lesions in conformity with the atrium of the heart.